FOUR DAY CELEBRATION

PLANS TO BE ACTED ON BY CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE

Dr. J. A. Singmaster Presents Statement of Gettysburg Showing Conditions Celebration is Up against.

At the meeting of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg Commission held at Washington, D. C., on Thursday, Jan. 11th, 1912, to which Dr. J. A. Singmaster, the chairman of our local Citizens' Committee had been invited, he presented the following statement, which the Commission received and filed for reference: Communication from the Citizens' Committee of Gettysburg.

Gentlemen:—By the courtesy of your chairman, General Louis Wagner, I appear before this honorable commission as Chairman of a Citizens' Committee of Gettysburg, to present its views concerning the celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the great battle, and to give information concerning our local situation and resources, in order that your commission may have some basis for action in the work of preparing for the coming jubilee.

1. The Water Supply. Our present water supply amounts to about 250,000 gallons per day, which is sufficient for the needs of our population of four thousand, for domestic and manufacturing purposes and for consumption by locomotives. This supply, under favorable circumstances and for a short period, has been found adequate for ten thousand troops. For this period, however, a large storage tank and auxiliary pumping engine were found necessary. It is hoped that by July, 1913, the normal supply will be increased 1,000,000 gallons per day, provided no extraordinary drought should prevail. This would be sufficient for the needs of twelve thousand people, and might suffice for a day or two for twice that number. In the event, however, of an addition of forty or fifty thousand, large storage tanks will have to be erected and many miles of pipe laid to reach the visitors who will have to be located in camps.

2. Light. The question of lighting the camps, while not so serious as that of supplying them with water, will demand your investigation. With the additional work entailed on the electric cars, it seems to us that the present equipment will have to be considerably supplemented to furnish the needed lights.

3. Transportation. With the existing equipment and under favorable circumstances, the Reading and Western Maryland Railroads could bring in about 20,000 passengers on the first day and not half that number on the second. In case of a breakdown the service would be seriously crippled. The transportation of supplies would require additional trains. Under present circumstances, the carrying of from 40,000 to 70,000 persons within a period of four or five days is utterly out of the question. Given even a longer period, it must be evident that the railroads would be compelled to lay some miles of additional track and to increase their depot facilities to a large extent. This problem is too complicated to be dealt with here. After consultation with the local agents, who submitted the matter of transportation to the General Passenger Agents of their respective lines, we were advised that it would be best for your commission to arrange a conference with Mr. Weeks of the Reading and Mr. Howell of the Western Maryland Railroads. In connection with the general transportation, it will be incumbent also upon your commission to arrange with the railroads for local transportation between the town and Round Top. The single line of electric railway would be entirely inadequate.

4. Entertainment. The matter of entertainment depends upon the number of days through which the celebration is to last, as well as on the number of persons to be cared for. The hotels have a capacity of about a thousand, the boarding houses and homes can care for about fifteen hundred, or a total of twenty-five hundred. This number has been exceeded in a few instances, reaching as high as seven or eight thousand for the night preceding the dedication of the Pennsylvania monument. But on that occasion the churches and other public buildings and passenger coaches were used. The crowding caused much discomfort and ought not to be repeated. Indeed, it is out of the question for a number of nights in the month of July. The capacity for entertainment could be considerably enlarged, provided the celebration be extended over several weeks, thus justifying the purchase of cots, tents and other supplies.

There can be no doubt that the great majority of the visitors will have to be accommodated in camps provided by the commission. The nature of the shelter ought also to be considered, whether it should consist of tents or wooden barracks. Some contend that the latter alone would be suitable for aged veterans.

5. Sanitation. The disposal of the excretion of thousands of people, in hot weather, without the help of sewers or running water, and in open camps, presents a problem involving decency and the health of visitors and residents, which must be committed to sanitary engineers.

It will also be necessary to provide emergency hospitals with their adjuncts, for accidents and sickness will be inevitable.

6. Order. It will also be necessary greatly to increase the local police force to check disorder and to control the crowds which will throng our streets. This burden will have to be borne by the resources of the commission. It has been suggested that the Pennsylvania State Constabulary might be secured to act under the direction of the local municipality.

The above points will give the commission a general view of our local situation. We pledge our hearty cooperation to make the celebration a success, but we feel that the great project must in no sense depend for execution upon our feeble efforts. Its accomplishment rests on the wisdom and the available resources of this commission. We have no fears of its success, provided the seriousness and magnitude of the celebration be properly apprehended.

Having presented these several local matters, we trust that we may not be considered impertinent in venturing to several additional matters, and in venturing upon a few suggestions, all of which is offered in a tentative way.

1. The Probable Number of Visitors. This will depend upon various factors, one of which is the question of free transportation of the surviving soldiers present in the battle of Gettysburg, residing now throughout the United States. It has been estimated, upon apparently reliable data, that the survivors of the battle number twenty-five thousand on the northern side. Of the former, seven thousand reside in Pennsylvania. Of the forty-five thousand, it is thought that fully sixty per cent, or twenty-seven thousand would be present, provided free transportation were furnished. Moreover, our experience indicates that on an average each veteran would be accompanied by a member of his family, thus making an aggregate of fifty-four thousand from this source alone. No doubt the celebration would appeal to all veterans, of whom fifty-six thousand are living in Pennsylvania and more in New York. In addition to these, there will be vast crowds of civilians. In view of these facts it does not seem extravagant to estimate the probable numbers at not less than seventy-five thousand.

2. The Duration of the Celebration. This is conditioned upon the number of visitors. Should they approach the above estimate, it would be a great strain upon all concerned and would involve a vast expenditure of money on the part of the Congress and Legislatures if the attempt were made to limit the celebration to a week. It has therefore occurred to our local committee to suggest that the time be extended to an entire month, which was actually the period of the Gettysburg campaign in 1862. It may be said also in this connection that in all probability the Sedgwick Equestrian Statue, to be erected by the State of Connecticut, the Lee Statue, to be erected by the State of Virginia, and several other memorials will be ready for dedication during July, 1913. These exercises might be incorporated as features of the great celebration.

In order to assist this great project, we offer the following general suggestions for the consideration of your committee:

1. The appointment of a Director General and an Executive Committee with large powers.

2. The appointment of committees to secure information through Grand Army Posts, the Confederate Veterans and elsewhere with a view to forming an estimate as to the probable attendance.

3. An arrangement for the presence of visitors in groups, preferably by States, and their location in camps.

4. A program providing for suitable exercises, not in one location, but in large tents placed here and there at convenient points. Perhaps one large frame auditorium might be included, or an immense amphitheatre of earth might be formed in a suitable natural depression. Great orators, singers and bands might visit in turn the several places of concourse.

5. The immediate starting of the work, in order that publicity may be given throughout the country, that the farmers on the field may arrange to have the land needed in the most favorable condition, and that the railroads may have ample time to provide proper facilities.

Respectfully submitted in behalf of the Citizens' Committee of Gettysburg, Pa.

J. A. SINGMASTER, Chairman

The following report, prepared by the Executive Committee was ratified and presented on Friday morning to the Joint Committee of Congress:

To the Hon. George T. Oliver, Hon. Weldon B. Heyburn, Hon. Isidor Rayner, Hon. James A. Tawney, Hon. Daniel F. Lafean, and Hon. John Lamb, Joint Committee of the Congress of the United States, to confer with the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg Commission.

Gentlemen: In pursuance of the purpose of the Act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, creating our Commission, approved May 13, 1909, and of the Concurrent Resolution of the Congress of the United States, dated June 10, 1910, appointing your committee, the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg Commission has the honor respectfully to represent:

First.—That we have arranged the outline of a series of public services to be held on the battlefield on the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th days of July, 1913, to be designated respectively as Veterans' Day, Military Day, Civic Day, and National Day, to which all surviving soldiers of the Civil War, the leading officers of the National Government, the Governors of the several States and Territories, and the general public shall be invited.

Second.—That the Governors of all the States and Territories have courteously accepted this invitation and have promised their co-operation.

Third.—That we have requested the executive heads of the several States and Territories to recommend such legislation as shall provide for the transportation of such Civil War veterans as shall then be living within their jurisdiction and who shall desire to attend this celebration, to and from their homes to the battlefield, and that we have every reason to expect that this will be done.

Fourth.—That the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has by Act of its General Assembly, approved June 14, 1911, appropriated a sum of money not to exceed two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to provide for its share of the expense of the proposed observance.

Fifth.—That we firmly believe that the details of the celebration, such as the rendition of a varied and impressive program, and the transportation of the expected visitors, and their accommodation while on the ground, are entirely practicable, and that they are being and will be successfully arranged.

Sixth.—In addition to the public exercises proposed as a fitting commemoration of the Golden Jubilee of this the greatest and most decisive battle of our national history, our Commission unanimously and earnestly recommends the erection on the field of Gettysburg of a permanent and worthy memorial, not of the battle only, but of the spirit and solidarity of our nation—a memorial that shall stand there for all time, crowning all the other commemorative works of art on that field, and teaching to posterity, for all generations, the story of the reunited and indissoluble American Republic—a memorial illustrating national peace and civic brotherhood.

Several suggestions have been made to us respecting the nature of this memorial. One is that a Temple of Peace shall be erected upon an appropriate and commanding spot, on the ground now owned by the Government, of fitting and symbolic architecture, suggesting the union of the States, and capable of accommodating civic, educational, and scientific conventions and the like. And this proposition is valuable in view of the fact that Gettysburg must become more and more important, as time goes on, as a center of public and patriotic interest.

Another interesting suggestion, and the one which commands our assent, is that this permanent Peace Memorial shall take the form of an imposing gateway, or entrance, to the Gettysburg National Military Park. This plan, in general terms, contemplates an appropriate approach from the turnpike, and the construction of a massive, stately and impressive memorial, signifying National Unity and Peace, the structure to be pierced by a spacious arch, or gateway, and to be surmounted by a heroic statue of Abraham Lincoln reading his Gettysburg address, and in the act of making the immortal declaration "That the government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth." It is our judgment that such a work as this would fittingly express the spirit and meaning of the proposed observance of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg; that its cost would not exceed an expenditure such as the Congress would willingly authorize—say a maximum of $500,000; and that standing as a Benedictus above this great bivouac of our patriotic dead it would be, for all time, an eloquent object lesson in American unity, valor and good-will.

This, then, is the recommendation of our Commission. We regard the erection of this memorial as by far the most important part of the proposed celebration of this anniversary, and we hope that it will commend itself to your favorable consideration, and to that of the Congress, and that such measures will be taken through you by the National Legislature as will guarantee the laying of the cornerstone of the structure by the President of the United States, at high noon, on July 4, 1913.

In view of these considerations, we therefore request your honorable Committee to direct the preparation and secure the passage of such an Act, at the present session of Congress, as shall embody the following provisions, to wit:—

First.—That the Honorable Secretary of War be authorized and directed to detail the necessary officers of the Army to locate, lay out, and arrange camps for the accommodation of the surviving veterans who may be present—the number of these visitors and the States from which they come to be reported to said officers in ample time; and also for the regular soldiers and national guardsmen who may be detailed to take part in the celebration.

Second.—That the Honorable Secretary of War be authorized and directed to detail such detachments of the Army as he may elect from its several arms of service to represent the military establishment of the United States at the celebration, the same to be under the command of the commanding general of the Army, who shall be in supreme control of the field throughout the event.

Third.—That the United States Quartermaster's Department shall be authorized and directed to provide the necessary camp and garrison equipment for the visiting veterans, and the Commissary Department of the Army the supplies for them during the celebration.

Fourth.—That the United States

THE COLDEST COLD

MERCURY IS LOWER THAN EVER HEARD OF BEFORE.

Record of the Coldest Days in the Last Dozen Years and Record of Past Week.

The present extreme cold weather is probably the longest period of cold weather that has ever visited this section. The official record shows one colder day in 1899 but for two successive days the mercury has insisted upon dropping below the zero mark and on a number of other days hovering around that point. That the coldest cold has been endured is indicated by the fact that on York street in this place three trees commonly known as the Paradise tree and a tree not native to countries of extreme cold, split open by the intense cold.

While the official thermometers of Col. E. B. Cope registered on Saturday 13 below and on Sunday 29 below, thermometers at other points, specially exposed places, went much lower. We have heard of thermometers being found Sunday morning at 28, 30, 32 and 35 below, the lowest heard of being said to be at home of J. D. W. Deardorff, last dwelling on the Carlisle road, and near the course of the run through the Alms House farm, and 38 below is said to have registered at this point on Sunday morning. Throughout the county on Saturday morning reports were heard of 20 below at Biglerville and 30 below near Fairfield and on Sunday reports of several places in county were heard where the mercury stood at 40 below zero.

This extreme cold has been severe on water pipes and on Sunday every plumber in town was kept busy the whole day through frozen pipes. Frozen ears, fingers and feet have also been reported.

Col. Cope reports the following as the lowest temperatures recorded for the past fourteen years:

189926 below
1900zero
19012 above
19022 below
19034 below
190412 below
19061 above
19079 below
19112 above

The official record for the past week is as follows:

January 83 below
January 99 above
January 106 above
January 114 above
January 1210 above
January 1313 below
January 1420 below

Banquet of Beneficial Society.

The annual banquet of St. Francis Xavier Beneficial Society was held in Xavier Hall last Wednesday evening, about sixty members with their wives and friends being present. After full justice had been done to the banquet served by twelve young ladies of the sodality, Wm. McSherry took charge as toastmaster and toasts were responded to by Rev. Father Smyth, E. P. Wisotzky, Wm. F. Weaver, P. G. Brezigney, Chas. F. Redding, Edgar P. Hamilton, Chas. E. Swisher and Miss Genevieve Ramer of the Ladies Auxiliary. A rising vote of thanks and appreciation for what Father Hayes had done for St. Francis Xavier Church was taken and expressions of kindness were sent him by the society.

School Buildings Fumigated.

When it became known to the Board of Health and school authorities that the little girl, Elvira Crooks, had diphtheria, steps were immediately taken to stamp out the contagion and prevent its development. The schools were all closed last Friday, and the school room of Mrs. Witherow in the High Street Building was fumigated. The High School Building on York street where a child of Mr. and Mrs. McDonnell attended, was also thoroughly fumigated and to make sure to prevent any outbreak the Meade School Building was also fumigated. The fumigation was done under direction of the Board of Health and was more thoroughly done than upon any previous occasion. The rooms were so saturated with the fumes of formaldehyde that it was found that they could not be occupied by the schools. The authorities are to be congratulated in the vigorous way they took hold of this matter and it is believed that their action will have much to do to prevent a spread of the dread disease. The origin of the single case of the Crooks child does not clearly appear.

Basketball Season Opens.

The basketball season of the Gettysburg College team opened last Thursday evening with a fast game played with the Mt. St. Mary's team resulting in favor of the home team by the score of 27 to 17.

The team lost to Lebanon Valley on last Friday evening at Lebanon by score of 20 to 8.

On Saturday evening at South Bethlehem they lost to Lehigh by the score of 35 to 19.

Two home games are scheduled for this week in the college gymnasium, one with Lebanon Valley Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, the other Friday evening with the Albright College team.

DRUMMER AT GETTYSBURG

MAKES A PILGRIMAGE EACH YEAR TO BATTLEFIELD.

To the Scenes on Culp's Hill with Dead Piled on Dead Which Live in His Memory.

Marshall C. Dunn, one of the oldest employees in point of service in the Northern Central Railway, who has recently retired, began his adventurous career early in life. When but a youngster he went to the Civil War as a drummer boy, called by the youthful love of excitement. At Gettysburg he witnessed sights that he will never forget. After this battle he was employed to run trains which carried "soldiers" in exchange.

In the sunny comfort of the parlor of his home in Baltimore, he talked of his life. Despite his 67 years and a grandchild of 14, one would never think him over 50 at the very most.

During a week about 20 years ago he lost one of his legs as the result of sticking to his post as a string of cars dashed into his train broadcast.

He was off duty but a short time, and returned to the cab of the engine wearing a cork leg.

"Yes, I was a drummer boy at Gettysburg," said Mr. Dunn, in answer to a question. "My family was living at Savannah when the war broke out and, being Unionist at heart, we moved at once to the North. That is, all but my brother, who for business reasons remained behind. Then the war broke out, all means of communication were cut off and my brother was forced to join the Confederate Army, where he afterward became Col. A. C. Dunn.

"Then came the same old story. He was on one side and I on the other for although I sympathized with the South and the Southern people, I believed in the Union of the States lay this country's salvation. We met at Hagerstown—he in gray, I in blue. I heard that his corps was there, and as I was much younger than he, I walked several miles from where we were camped to see him. Being such a youth I was passed through the lines without much trouble. He gave me a royal welcome; we have always been fond of one another. We talked of our family and our friends 'way into the night. I then left for the Union camp, he seeing me safely through the lines.

"If I should live to be a hundred I shall never forget Gettysburg. I was too young to realize the danger of my position and enjoyed leading the army into battle. You see, the drummers marched at the head of the soldiers until nearly into action, when we dropped to the rear. I was in General Slocum's corps. We saw a good deal of fighting.

"I shall never forget the scene at Culp's Hill. Each year I pay a visit to Gettysburg, and as I sit there on the soft green grass amid the well-kept park it seems as a horrible dream to me. Were it not for the monuments all about I would think it the result of a vivid imagination; these prove it a grim reality.

"It was hot at Gettysburg; fiendishly hot. As we marched the dust rose in clouds, feet grew sore and weary, we choked for water and longed for just a moment's rest. Then the battle! No one who was not there can realize what a fearful thing it was, what a fearful thing war is. How I got through it safely I do not know. Men fell all about me; men who I had laughed and joked with a few hours before; men who had shared my bed and board for many weary days.

"But the most terrible time, to my youthful brain, was when the battle was over and the dead lay piled upon one another on the flats about Culp's Hill. The ground was thick with them—young life and blood were almost nothing. Men died like ants when kerosene is poured upon them. Soldiers like any other wounded men do not die silently and without suffering. Some lay there during the hot, still night calling for water, for their comrades, and some calling for death which would not come. I cannot think of it without pain; I cannot talk of it even now.

"I was enlisted for three months, and was discharged after Gettysburg, as my time was up. It was then I started on the railroads, carrying prisoners for exchange, handling soldiers to guard bridges, for the horror of war is increased tenfold when there is no means of communication by train. Therefore the bridges were carefully guarded night and day.

"Since then my life has been a rather peaceful one. Outside of several minor accidents—the one in which I lost my leg and one in which my fireman was blown out of the cab by an explosion—nothing of much note has occurred. The Pennsylvania has always been most kind to me, and I was asked not to retire. But I found my work getting irksome on account of my artificial leg, so the company at last consented to let me go. But it has never stopped being good to me."

Short Weights and Measures.

In these days of high cost of living, buyers are tempted often to weigh their purchases and complaints have been heard of shortages. We would believe that many shortages in buying their weights and measures have been led to believe the same were correct but had no way to have them declared officially so. It is a question in many minds whether an inspector under the Act of 1911 would not be a very useful official and the city council weights and measures could be obtained. The following is the Act:

Sec. 1. Be it enacted, etc., That the several boards of county commissioners, city and townships, and boroughs, shall to inspect and verify the weights and measures as they may deem proper to protect the public from the use of false weights and measures, and whose duties it shall be to faithfully enforce and execute the laws of the Commonwealth now in existence or which may be hereafter enacted with reference to weights and measures. The compensation and expenses of such county inspectors shall be fixed by the respective boards of county commissioners, and paid by appropriations directly from the proper county treasuries.

Sec. 2. That all county inspectors so appointed shall be supplied, at the expense of their respective counties, with standard tests of weights and measures, in conformity with those established by the Government of the United States or the Bureau of Standards of the State and the laws of this Commonwealth; and to insure the accuracy of these tests they shall be compared with the standard tests to be purchased by the Secretary of Internal Affairs; and when so compared and their correctness established, they shall be so stamped or marked in such manner as may be established by the rules and regulations, hereinafter referred to, to be put in force by said Secretary of Internal Affairs and approved by the Governor of the Commonwealth.

The inspector shall take charge of and safely keep the standards. Where not otherwise provided by law, the inspectors shall have the power, within their respective jurisdictions, to inspect, test, try, and ascertain if they are correct, all weights, scales, beams, measures of any kind, instruments or mechanical devices for measurement, and the tools, appliances, or accessories connected with any or all such instruments or measurements, used or employed within the city by any proprietor, agent, lessee, or employee in determining the size, quantity, extent, area, or measurement of quantity, things, produce, articles for distribution or consumption offered or submitted by any person or persons for sale, for hire, or award. He may, for the purpose above mentioned and in the general performance of his duty, enter or go into or upon, and without formal warrant, any stand, place, building, or premises, or may step any vendor, peddler, junk-dealer, coal wagon, ice-wagon, or any dealer whatsoever, for the purpose of making proper tests. Whenever the seller finds a violation of the statute relating to weights and measures, he may seize, without a warrant, such weights, measures, or balances as may be necessary to be used as evidence in case of violation of the law relative to the sealing of weights and measures, and they shall be held until otherwise directed by the court.

Sec. 3. Whoever himself, or by his servant or agent, or as the servant or agent of another person, is guilty of giving false or insufficient weight or measure, shall, for the first offense, be punished by a fine of not more than fifty dollars, and for a subsequent offense, by a fine of one hundred dollars, and by imprisonment for not less than thirty nor more than ninety days, at the discretion of the court. It shall be unlawful for any inspector to use any tests or standards or to attempt to use the same, in ascertaining the correctness or accuracy of weights and measures, until such comparisons are made and their accuracy established, and so stamped or marked; and any inspector violating the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction therefore shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or undergo imprisonment for a period not exceeding one year, or both or either, at the discretion of the court.

Orchard Demonstration Work.

Dr. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, is now making arrangements for another year of strenuous Model Orchard instruction and demonstration work. While he will continue to give service to those who request aid by correspondence and otherwise, and also to send the inspectors into those orchards which they have not yet visited he will make a special feature of aiding fruit growers, gardeners, truckers and farmers who are having trouble with pests, and wish to be shown how to control them. For this purpose he will send his trained inspectors and demonstrators to all places possible where their services are requested, and direct them to do practical work showing how modern remedies are to be prepared and applied. As this work should result in modern conditions, the orchards, farms or gardens thus treated are given the general term of "Model Orchards." They will be at all times under the direct surveillance of the inspectors, who will superintend every detail of the work done in them, and hence are called "Supervision Orchards." Excepting where public meetings will be held for demonstration purposes. At these places they are called "Demonstration Orchards." The full list of the proposed demonstration and supervision orchards for the year 1912 is now being prepared in the office of the Economic Zoologist and information concerning the location of the orchards will be sent free to those who request it.

During the year 1911 Prof. Surface received over sixteen hundred applications from persons who desired him to take their orchards on the Model Orchard plan. He did not have a sufficient force to reach more than one hundred of them, but as he is now making plans for the new year he will be able to reach many more, and requests those who wish to be placed on the Model Orchard List to communicate with him as soon as practicable. This service is extended free by the Division of Zoology of the Department of Agriculture, of the State of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of showing how to produce good fruit from unsatisfactory orchards.

Orchard owners are instructed according to their individual needs, and are helped personally, but the work is not done for or on further than is necessary to give this instruction. This plan, which has resulted so satisfactorily, will be continued during the next year as far as the funds will permit.

Exhibition from Model Orchards.

During the third week of January, when the fair is in session, a large exhibition of agricultural and horticultural products of Pennsylvania in the form of garden, at Harrisburg. At this exhibition there will be over three carloads of apples from the various demonstration and supervision orchards, which have been conducted under the direction of Professor H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, as Pennsylvania Model Orchards. This fruit comes from absolutely all counties of the State of Pennsylvania, and, although exhibited by amateurs, will be a great encouragement to fruit growers, as it will show what can be done in each and every one of the sixty-seven counties of this Commonwealth. All this fruit is from trees that have been sprayed when dormant with the five sulfur solution; and just after the blossoms fell they were sprayed with dilute lime-sulfur and arsenate of lead for the codling moth and fungus diseases.

The different Model Orchard owners have taken a keen interest in co-operating with the Division of Zoology of the Department of Agriculture of Harrisburg, to show the products of these orchards, which have received expert attention during only a year or two. It is convincing evidence that the methods used and the materials recommended by the demonstrator were correct, as such results could not have been obtained by other means. It will pay every person interested in display of fruits by amateur growers, shown in plates, boxes and barrels. Nothing could be done that would more decidedly prove the value of this work than such an exhibition showing really beneficial results.

Teeth and Health.

Unless your teeth are in perfect condition, you cannot consider yourself well. I feared for teeth cause more disease than people dream of. The combined surface of the teeth have an area of twenty-five square inches, enough space for a great deal of dirt to accumulate, and large enough to hold millions of germs. As a matter of fact, the teeth and mouths of unhealthy persons are covered with the greatest variety of disease germs which often find splendid hiding places in decayed cavities and about unclean gums.

Here they stay until either they are driven outside by a thorough cleansing of the mouth or are taken into the body with the food. Germs of pneumonia and many other diseases are very often found in the mouths of apparently healthy people.

It is most important, therefore, that the mouth and teeth be kept clean. The teeth should last to the end of life. A well-balanced diet, a sane manner of living and the brushing of the teeth at least twice a day, before breakfast and at bed time, will enable you to preserve your teeth as long as you need them. It is a good plan to have a dentist examine your teeth twice a year. Well cared for teeth and a well cleansed mouth help to preserve health and thus prevent tuberculosis. — Karl de Schweinitz, Executive Secretary, Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The Bayberry Candle.

The fragrant bayberry candle is again in our midst, seemingly in greater numbers than ever, yet many people know little or nothing about it. Its history is extremely interesting, and its use in Colonial times was first from necessity, from which state it arose to fashion and finally became the harbinger of good luck and plenty when burned at the Christmas season.

Robert Beverly, in "The History of Virginia," published in 1705, wrote as follows: "At the mouths of their rivers and all along upon the sea and bay and near many of their creeks and swamps, a shrub grows, bearing a berry of which they make a hard, brittle wax of a curious green color, which by refining becomes almost transparent. Of this they make candles which are never greasy to the touch and do not melt with lying in the hottest weather: neither does the snuff of these ever offend the sense like that of a tallow candle, but instead of being disagreeable, if an accident puts a candle out, it yields a pleasant fragrance to all who are in the room, inasmuch that nice people often put them out on purpose to have the incense of the expiring snuff." This early English botanist in his quaint description struck upon one truth which people in general do not know—it is in snuffing the candle that the fragrance is best detected.

The bayberry bush is common along our coast from Maine to Florida, in the sandy soil along waterways. It bears little catkins of flowers in the spring which resemble tiny pinecones. Later these ripen into tiny round nutlets. Small resinous pellets of wax cover the nutlet, which become silvery white when ripe. Of such great importance was this vegetable wax in New England that in certain districts stringent laws were passed prohibiting the gathering of the berries before September 15 under penalty of a fine of 15 shillings.

In Louisiana they bordered the bayou with bayberry bushes and sometimes defined the boundaries of the plantations with them. Rice, tobacco and "candleberries" are mentioned as profitable exports as early as 1763.

The extracting of the wax and purifying it is a tedious task, but the gathering of the berries is by far the most troublesome. Mosquitoes in myriads make the bushes their home, and unless a very breezy day is chosen, it is almost impossible to strip the berries from the stems. When a bucketful of them is obtained, however, one may feel satisfied that about two pounds of wax may be extracted under favorable circumstances. Many ways are given for extraction of the wax, but experience is the only way to success. Place the berries in a deep receptacle with quantities of water and boil for half an hour. The next requisite is quick cooling, as otherwise the wax settles back on the berries and all the trouble of gathering and boiling is for naught. Therefore to save the berries until a cold day or evening makes the task worth while.

The wax comes to the top in the form of a scum and quickly hardens into a wax of indescribably beautiful pale green. The later the berries are gathered the yellower becomes the wax until a late October gathering gives a wax almost yellow. The berries yield better if freed from all twigs and leaves and two boilings will be enough to secure the pure wax. If it is not quite clean, boil the wax without water and pour through cheesecloth. It should then be ready for molding into candles or for the more interesting though far more troublesome "dipping."

The dips show by far the more ancient method of candle-making. In our Commercial Museum, in the Philippine section, are shown some long white wax candles made by dipping the wick into the hot wax. This method is most laborious, as but a thin layer of wax remains at each dipping. Our ancestors soon found that "molding" the candles was far more expeditious and easy, and no doubt called down blessings upon the head of the forgotten thimble which they invented the molds, which held four, six, eight, twelve and in rare cases twenty-four candles. The labor of stringing the wick into the tubes is slight when compared to the many, many "dips" necessary to one wick before the candle "dip" is completed.

The candle molds of Colonial times, like the spoon molds of the same period, were freely loaned and traveled from house to house in a community.

To make the wax go as far as possible, the poorer and less refined people mixed tallow with the bayberry wax. This naturally made the fragrance much less. It also makes the color dull, and instead of a lively bright-green or yellow-green color, the candles are dull and brownish. Much boiling changes the tone of the green, but pure bayberry wax has always the live, bright color which stamps it as genuine. Many candles of commerce are of the mixed variety and must be a disappointment to the purchaser who thought she was buying a pure candle at a low price. The price of the pure article is never low.

Another method of producing an odor is by dipping the wick in oil of cinnamon. This seems too sacrilegious, but it has been done. Without doubt the buyer of this spurious article can detect the spicy odor which takes the place of the herby, earthy odor of the pure bayberry wax candle.

There is much sentimentality connected with the burning of the bayberry candle, quite apart from its aesthetic use. The old rhyme is now known to the majority of people:

On New Year's Eve.

A bayberry candle burned to the socket

Brings health to the home and wealth to the pocket.

This rhyme is much varied. Sometimes it is a Christmas eve that is recommended and "root to the farder" is sometimes promised.

In Colonial days when sweethearts were about to be separated for a period the maiden secured two bayberry candles and each evening light them. As the fragrant smoke curled upward and joined, the spirits of the lovers were supposed to be communicating. The legend does not state whether or not the young man went through the same ceremony. The gift of two candles to a friend was considered very charming. These were used as "anniversary candles." The fortunate recipient lighted them at first on Christmas night, then New Year's and so on throughout the year on such birthdays or feast days as giver and recipient held sacred. The candles are probably "burned to the socket" by Thanksgiving day. This seems a very pretty way to commune with one's friends.

Don't for Owners of Horses.

"Don't use cold bits in cold weather. Your horse's tongue is tender and his mouth is formed of delicate glands and tissues.

"Don't clip your horse when the mercury is at the freezing point

"Don't fail to blanket your horse when he stands in the cold.

"Don't forget that nasal catarrh, diphtheria, bronchitis and other ills often result from exposure and the chill which follows suddenly checked perspiration.

"Keep shoes sharp when the streets are slippery.

"Don't put your horse's feet in unskilled hands. Good feet are spoiled by bad shoeing.

"Don't keep your horse in an overheated stable, then stand him for hours in a freezing atmosphere, and wonder why he became paralyzed.

"Don't fail to water your horse the first thing in the morning, but not with ice water.

"Don't load your horse too heavily when the streets and roads are blocked with snow.

"Don't force him to back a heavy load over a heavy snow bank. A shovel with a little energy, will make it easier for your horse and your conscience.

"Don't try to convince your horse that he is on skates when his feet strike the slippery asphalt. Go slow, my son.

"Don't fail to oil your wagon axles. There is a heap of humanity in wagon grease.

"Don't fail to properly shelter your stock from the cold, and exercise them when the weather is good.

"Don't fail to have your horse's teeth examined. Of what use is food if your horse can't eat it?

"Don't dock your horse's tail. He needs it in winter as well as in summer, and it was put there by a master hand.

"Don't overcheck your horse. Nature's curves are always graceful.

"Don't forget that there is more profit in coaxing a horse than in kicking him. Try gentleness and see how it grows on you.

"Don't wait until your horse is dead, or nearly so, before you send for a doctor or an ambulance.

"Don't kill your horse in trying to get him out of a hole before you send for the derrick.

"Don't send anonymous complaints. 'A Lover of Animals,' 'Friend of Humanity' and other familiar writers belie their titles, when they fail to send their addresses. Be manly and don't hesitate to appear when you are needed for the successful investigation or prosecution of a case, by your seeming cowardice, consign your complaint to the waste basket."

Dreaming.

I hate to read of millionaires Because such reading seems To hypnotize me utterly And start me dreaming dreams. How many times I've figured out What I'd be apt to do If I were in that fellow's place

And had a million too. Of course I'd use my fortune well, More sensibly than he, For I'd give ten per cent. at least To worthy charity.

Another ten per cent. would go To help along a few Of my deserving relatives Whose bills are overdue. And then my duty to the church:

Of course a goodly share— Say twenty-five per cent. or so, Would be devoted there. I'd give this latter quietly. Insisting that my name Must be withheld, that none might know

Whence this donation came. I'd only let the pastor know; He'd have to know, you see, Because my name upon the check Would show it was from me.

Another twenty-five per cent. Would do myself and wife; The income we'd derive from that Would keep us both for life.

Then after that—well, after that I dream away and plan To spend still another ten per cent. To help my fellow man.

And finally my dreaming gets A bit confused, and then I take a tumble, and my feet Touch solid earth again;

And common sense assures me, as It stops me with a jerk, I've wasted time enough to do A dollar's worth of work.

GETTYSBURG

Light house of heroic glory Shines in soaring song and story With gleams the hero of the free And Lee the hope of slavery!

And for the freedom of our race He occupies all time and space!

And proudly we behold to-day Great monuments to Blue and Gray And where the valor of each man Trilled the American!

Age after age shall pass away And nations moulder and decay But Gettysburg shall ever be Our glorious, grand Thermopylae!

The following are the morbidity and vital statistics as kept by Dr. Henry Stewart, Secretary of the Board of Health for the year 1911:

MORBIDITY STATISTICS.

One hundred and twenty-four cases of communicable diseases were reported to the board:

Whooping cough, 4 cases.

Typhoid fever, 6 cases.

Erysipelas, 2 cases.

With the exception of the outbreak of chicken pox, this is the healthiest year the town has ever seen, and it is especially noticeable in the absence of the serious infections of childhood—diphtheria and scarlet fever.

The routine work in handling the above cases, comprised the reception, entry and filing of 352 reports, the making out, entry and mailing of 347 notices and 23 consolidated weekly reports to the Department of Health.

The Health Officer posted and removed 114 placards.

Wreck on W. M. R. R.

Five box cars and a caboose were demolished on the W. M. R. R. just above Wallbrook Station early last Saturday morning, when an extra freight crashed into rear end of a regular freight. The extra was rounding the curve in cut near Wallbrook Station and when flagged there was not enough track between the extra and the regular freight for the former to be brought to a standstill. The engine cut the caboose in pieces, the next four cars were overturned with their contents, one car containing tobacco and another whiskey and the wreckage was quickly burned. No one was injured.

Rheumatism

Is a Constitutional Disease.

It manifests itself in local aches and pains, inflamed joints and stiff muscles,—but it cannot be cured by local applications.

It requires constitutional treatment, and the best is a course of the great blood purifying and tonic medicine which corrects the acid condition of the blood and builds up the system.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs.

Sawed His Way through Toll Gate.

Charles H. Bittinger, living near Bittinger, in this county, has been having trouble at the tollgate on Carlisle pike in this county. The trouble started several months ago when, after being kept waiting at the gate, having a round trip ticket, he exercised the privilege of lifting the pole and passing through. Since then the keeper would not receive any money, keeping account of the trips made by Bittinger. One day last week Mr. Bittinger paid the toll and on his way back was held up for the previous bill. The keeper refused to raise the pole. Mr. Bittinger procured a saw and sawed the pole off and proceeded on his way through gate.

L. M. Buehler's Success.

L. M. Buehler the enterprising drug gist rather than await the ordinary methods of introduction, urged the Dr. Howard Co. to secure a quick sale for their celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia by offering the regular 50c bottle at half price.

The wonderful success of this plan was a great surprise even to L. M. Buehler and today there are scores of people here in Gettysburg who are using and praising this remarkable remedy.

In addition to selling a 50c bottle of Dr. Howard's specific for 25c L. M. Buehler has so much faith in the remedy that he will refund the money to anyone whom it does not cure.

When your head aches, your stomach does not digest food easily and naturally when there is constipation, specks before the eyes, tired feeling, giddiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, heart burn, sour stomach, roaring or ringing in the ears, melancholy and liver troubles Dr. Howard's specific will cure you. If it does not it will not cost you a cent.

This latest achievement of science is of great value in curing sick headache. Thousands of women are to-day free from that painful disease solely through the use of this specific.

Baltimore Wins Convention.

The Democratic National Committee last week decided upon Baltimore as the place of meeting of the Democratic National Convention and June 25 as the date, one week after the Republican convention in Chicago. St. Louis, Chicago, Denver and New York asked for the convention, but the certified check for $100,000 ready to be delivered by Baltimore won the day.

The Baltimore papers talk about the difficulty in handling a crowd estimated at 100,000 at the terminals and in the city, yet a crowd equally large or greater, is proposed for Gettysburg in four days in 1913 and with good reason the people of this place say it can not be done.

A Half Million Apple Crop.

The COMPILER several weeks ago in noting the convention of the Fruit Growers' Association of Adams county said that according to the estimates the apple crop would run to such enormous figures as 200,000 barrels. There were those who were not as sanguine as to the total crop placing it at about 175,000 barrels. As the exact figures are received it looks as though the total would exceed the first figure.

In 1910 from McKnightstown was shipped 14,275 barrels and 1800 barrels in bulk, and it took 107 cars in which to ship the crop.

In 1911 from the same station is shipped 26,289 barrels and 1859 barrels in bulk and it took 186 cars.

The total crop of 1910 was 123,777 barrels and while the crop of 1911 will not fully double that of 1910 yet from the McKnightstown figures it is easily to be seen that the total for 1911 will be as much as 200,000 barrels and as few apples were sold at less than $2.50 per barrel and many more than that sum, the total apple crop of 1911 can be said to have been fully worth half a million dollars.

Waterback Explodes.

Mrs. Charles C. Brown and her aged father, John Albert, of East Berlin, had a thrilling experience about day-break Monday morning of last week. It happened after Mrs. Brown had started a big fire in the range to which is also attached water pipes extending to a boiler on the second floor, and blew out the water-back, making a wreck of the entire stove. Mr. Albert who was sitting back of the stove, was struck on both hands and one leg by pieces of the broken range. Dr. Lau was summoned and found his injuries consisted of badly lacerated hands and bruised lower limbs. Mrs. Brown who was also in the kitchen at the time, escaped without being injured, but was badly frightened.

Rev. Brown, who was upstairs, heard the report and hurried to the scene in his night clothes to find the stove broken into more than a hundred pieces. The contents of the fire box were scattered over the floor and started to burn briskly, but the fire was extinguished. Every glass in the kitchen windows was broken by the concussion.

The water in the pipes from the stove to the boiler had frozen during the night and after the fire was started steam began to form but could not circulate, which was the immediate cause of the explosion.

Mr. Albert's injuries are not considered serious. This is the second misfortune within a few months, having just recovered from several broken ribs and other injuries sustained last autumn.

WELL DESERVED.

The Praise That Comes From Thankful Gettysburg People.

One kidney remedy never fails.

Gettysburg people rely upon it.

That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills.

Gettysburg testimony proves it always reliable.

Mrs. Edward A. Trostle, 128 York St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills two years ago and I now take the pleasure in confirming that statement. A member of my family complained a great deal of pains through the small of the back and always felt tired and worn out. Doan's Kidney Pills were doing such good work in similar cases, that we decided to try them and a supply was procured at the People's Drug Store. Their use brought relief and made a marked improvement in every way. We are firm believers in the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills and recommend them to anyone afflicted with kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

MAJOR AND MAID

By Martha McCulloch-Williams

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

The maid was pretty—maids have to be, in and out of stories. If things are to happen to them. This is not saying plain maids are barred from romances, but a subtle setting forth of the mystic fact that somehow, sometime, every maid has her hour or minute of charm.

With Elise the hour was always. She lay down delightful and rose up enchanting. What chance, then, had the Major?—the Major who born susceptible, had improved the talent by assiduous cultivation?

He had made love in five languages, in pretty well every corner of the globe. His title was real enough—he had held, once upon a time, a commission in a state troop that was full of patronage for any sort of mere regular. Rich, a bachelor, more than fair looking, and fastidious, yet ardent, it was a marvel that he had come to forty-five with no more than an occasional singed wing.

Elise, at something more than sweet and twenty, had begun to weary of mere men. Those of her own age seemed to her immature. She wished in her idle moments—they were very few—that princes and potentates ranged America in disguise, the same as they did in wonder-romances. Presidents could not do such things—hardly even governors or judges. Each and several they were too well known—besides they rarely came to hear the liberal education of matrimony. She was beginning to suffer from "the passion for distinction" which somebody says is the strongest of human impulses. Therefore the Major appealed to her enormously.

They met at Glenly. Nora Page, hostess there, had vowed for two years they were meant one for another. She was by way of seeing her prophecy come true, when Fate gave a twist to things. The mildest, most ridiculous twist—but, after all, there are no trifles either in life or love.

Notwithstanding, Joe Bassett was a human, commonplace friend to Nora's brother and, like him, a lawyer struggling to get a foothold, who had been asked at about the thirteenth hour, when three more eligible fellows had been held from coming. The house party had begun mid-week, the extra men coming down for Sunday. Thus the major and Elise had had three days wherein to appraise each other, and find the result satisfactory. His mind had been made up, indeed, as early as Friday luncheon that here was the predestined Mrs. Archibald Wayne. Elise had not been quite so precipitate, yet there was more than a leaning in her consciousness toward the major.

Then came Joe Bassett, and after him a heavenly Sunday. It was too fine altogether to be wasted motor-ing—besides, Elise was tired of whirling past fields knee deep in lush June grasses, past roadides starred with sweetbrier, sniff the earth-frangrance, idle deliciously in shade or sunlight, solely according to her own vagrant fancy. Therefore, she let the cars go off without her, setting forth herself a little after with only the major and the Fraton girl for company. The Fraton girl presupposed her fiancé, Ben Martin—but Elise knew well that an engaged couple though quite sufficient for propriety, were practically the same as nobody.

She strolled lightly forward, laughing and chatting, conscious that the Major trembled if she did but look at him; conscious also that the other pair was well out of earshot, in fact hardly in sight. She was at her best, a creature of whim, of charm untold. The Major wanted to kneel, and lay himself and his fortune at her feet. Seasoned though he was, he was much in love—so much that he was awkwardly self conscious. To speak plainly, he was suffering the pangs he should rightly have undergone in his sorrow youth. Like other youthful ails they sit ill upon maturity. Therefore, he had been calmly, audaciously masterful with women. Elise daunted him—worse than an army with banners.

He had been fearless of all save one thing—namely, cattle. But he had forgotten his fear—as he had forgotten all else upon this smiling Sunday save the fact that he was walking with the girl he loved. When the way ran presently across a stile into a stretch of grassland, he rejoiced—the stile gave him excuse to take Elise half in his arms. As he set her upon her little feet, he breathed hard—and murmured hoarsely:

"You—you must know what you've done to me—what you mean! Tell me—have I—any—any chance?"

Elise answered only with a dainty half smile, and darted across the turf toward a clump of magnificent beeches. Wide-spreading boughs drooped about them—there she did not see that the shade tent had an occupant, two occupants indeed, albeit one was too high for instant vision, being perched upon a big bough that gave a secure seat. The other stood upon their hoofs, tossing a beautiful angry head up and down. He was a pure-bred Devon bull, red as a strawberry all over, and in fine and build the pattern of his kind. A halter-ent trailed from the ring in his nose. Evidently he had been once and was a runaway, and in a temper. But Elise felt no fear. She shook a small fist at him, crying:

"O! You sultan! Do you want all this beautiful shade?"

"Run! For goodness sake, run!" the major panted at her elbow, himself turning and sprinting at a surprising rate.

The bull made to follow him, bellowing and pawing as he ran. Elise stepped nimbly aside—she was too amazed, too angry for fear, though she knew there was real danger. Knots of scarlet ribbon flicked her white frock—the sunshine glinting on them, ascended them so the red creature grew mad over them. Wheeling, he would have charged her, disdaining to follow the flying major, but that a lean, long arm reached over his neck, caught the halter end and brought him up standing with a jerk.

Joe Bassett up in the tree, easing his heart through the medium of very bad verses to Elise, who had smitten him hopelessly at first blush, had come to the rescue. It was a near thing. For half a minute it seemed the bull would break away—but the lean hand held with a grip of steel. Presently the animal stood subdued, but panting angrily, wild to get at Elise, but held subject to a man.

"You had better go!" Joe said, contritely as though feeling himself culpable for the spoiling of her walk. She shook her head at him, smiling, as she said: "I shall stay—till help comes. Remember—a runner has gone for it."

Something in her tone made Joe's heart sing. She was looking him over critically. "If I take off your belt don't you think you can fasten him to that small tree with it?" she asked a little hesitatingly.

Joe nodded laughing. How he blessed his stars for putting on that ugly leathern strap, instead of a fancy girdle. It took all his self control not to change color when Elise put her arms about him to loosen it, but some how he stood like a graven image.

Fate was on his side. After the bull was fast, standing disconsolate, a tricky wind blew to Elise, the blurred sheet Joe had dropped. He tried to reclaim it—but with her most winsome smile she put the hand holding it behind her, saying softly:

"I want to read it when I am all alone."

Just then farm hands came running in. True enough, the major had sent them. He himself waited at the stile for Elise, but after one look in her eyes walked sedately ahead, leaving Bassett master of the situation. Master of it he remained.

They were married in the fall. Joe put by his pride and overlooked Elise's money—which she thought an adorable thing to do.

FOUR DAY CELEBRATION.

shall assume and provide for the acceptance of a design for, and the expense of erecting, the proposed Peace Memorial in time to have its cornerstone laid as aforesaid.

The work of securing this necessary national legislation at an early day is indispensable to the successful consummation of the great duty charged upon our Commission. We commit it to the care of your Committee with a sincere appreciation of your patriotic interest, and with full confidence in your wisdom.

The Congressional Committee now has the matter under advisement and after careful investigation will no doubt present a bill to the present Congress making provision for the celebration.

From the above address to the Congressional Committee it is evident that the Pennsylvania Commission, which seems to constitute the Executive Committee of the General Commission, is still of the opinion that the celebration should be confined to the first four days of July. It was argued that propriety demands this, and that the resources of the State and Nation are ample to meet all emergencies. The address contemplates the attendance of all civil war veterans, of the North and of the South, who may be able to be present, and who shall come at the expense of the respective States in which they reside. As there will be still not less than 800,000 living in 1913 the proposition looks somewhat formidable, even though but one in ten might be able to come.

The Compiler and the Citizens' Committee have done all in their power to lay our local situation before the proper authorities and await further developments.

OLD PIKE TO BE SURVEYED.

Survey Ordered from Gettysburg to Pittsburg by Bigelow.

A complete survey of what is known as the old "Southern road" extending from Pittsburgh to Gettysburg, laid out in colonial times and until the time of the railroads the great highway between Philadelphia and the western part of the State has been ordered by State Highway Commissioner E. M. Bigelow and if the weather permits surveyors will begin work this week. This survey will be preliminary to improvement of what is destined to be one of the great highways of the State's system of main roads and it is likely that some of the contracts for work will be let during the coming spring and summer.

Commissioner Bigelow made a number of inspections of this famous highway and last fall found the section in the vicinity of Ligonier in such bad condition that he immediately put a force of men to work on it. One corps of engineers will work east from Pittsburgh to Bedford and another will go from Bedford to Gettysburg. At Gettysburg it is intended to have the highway connect with roads to be built from that historic town to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Harrisburg.

The old southern road runs through Greensburg, Ligonier, Stoyestown, Bedford, McConnellsburg, Chambersburg and Gettysburg. It was one of two great roads laid out through the State, the northern road running from Pittsburgh through Westmoreland, South Indiana, Northern Cambria, Blair and Center counties to the Susquehanna. The survey will place the commissioner in possession of complete data regarding the highway whose possibilities have become apparent since the automobile came into general use and which traverses one of the richest agricultural regions of the Commonwealth.

Teachers' Rally at Fairfield.

A rally of the teachers of the county was held in the public school building on last Saturday. The attendance was small considering that all teachers of the county were expected to be present, but nothing compulsory. The weather was very inclement. The location was bad for those who depended upon train service. There can be but a few hours at best between trains. The train west last Saturday morning was an hour behind time, thus giving those who came that way but a short session in the afternoon before the train east. The rally was preceded by an exercise consisting of two lectures on Friday evening. They were most excellent lectures. The first by Prof. A. C. Rothermel of the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, Pa., subject, "The Rights of the Child." The second by Prof. Sanders of Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Pa., subject, "The Social Value of Education." They were listened to with interest and pleasure. The same gentleman addressed the rally on Saturday. A luncheon was served for all visitors, in the Odd Fellows' Hall by a local committee representing the town and community.

Last Saturday evening an alarm was sent to town that Mr. Edward Miller's house was on fire on the C. P. Bream farm; fortunately it proved to be only the chimney and no damage was done.

Hon. J. U. Neely and daughter, Bess, went to Philadelphia last week for a short stay.

Temperatures in this community have ranged in the last few days from 20 to 42 degrees below zero.

Ice is plentiful and nearly all the houses are filled with most excellent ice.

The new butcher Elmer Rentzel, took possession of the H. L. Walter stand, the beginning of the year.

Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Mackley have returned from a two weeks visit to Maytown, Lancaster county.

Streets With Long Names.

"Using the letters of the alphabet and numbers to designate streets is called here," says a Berlin letter, "the 'American style,' and the introduction of the system has many advocates, but apparently these have no voice in the matter, because the popular idiom—royal, heroic, religious, scientific or commercial—still has the first call. Many of the names are exasperatingly long, and when we think that the most impossible one has been discovered we always find another just a little bit worse. Recently we saw two letters addressed to Vienna—one to a person in Klosterneuburgstrasse, and the other to a correspondent in Mariahilfergasse. How much time would be saved if these streets were numbered or lettered!"
